

INDIAN INSTITUTE OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY BHOPAL

Branch-CSE /CSE (CPS)/CSE(CS)/IT/PNC (Regular and Backlog)

Semester – I

End-Term Examination December– 2025

Subject Name/ Code: - Professional Communication/1005

Max. Marks: 60

Time Allotted: 3Hrs

NOTE: 1. All questions are compulsory.

2. Mark answers number clearly.

S. No.	Question	Marks
1.	(a) Elaborate the 7 C's of Communication. (b) You're delivering a presentation and notice the audience leaning back, looking at phones, and avoiding eye contact. How would you adjust your verbal and non-verbal behaviour to regain attention?	4 6
2.	(a) Explain any two tools used to prepare slide presentations and two editing softwares. (b) Identify some common errors that people usually make while drafting e-mails. Provide an example of an error free e-mail.	4 6
3.	(a) Answer the following questions based on the following content: The Disappearing Art of Letter Writing In an age dominated by instant messaging and social media, the traditional art of letter writing appears to be fading rapidly. For centuries, handwritten letters served as a powerful tool to express emotions, record memories, and maintain relationships across distances. They carried a personal touch—each word crafted with intention, each page bearing the imprint of time and emotion. Today, however, communication has become faster but arguably less thoughtful. Digital messages encourage brevity, often prioritizing convenience over emotional depth. While technology has undeniably connected the world in unprecedented ways, some fear it has also diluted the sincerity once embedded in personal correspondence. Despite this shift, letter writing has not vanished completely. A growing number of individuals are rediscovering its charm, using it as a way to slow down and reconnect meaningfully. Whether through journaling, pen-pal exchanges, or special occasion letters, people are finding comfort in the slower, more deliberate act of writing. The question remains: can this nostalgic practice survive in an increasingly digital future? i. Choose the best meaning of the underlined word based on the passage. "...the sincerity once embedded in personal correspondence" a) honesty and genuine feeling b) formality c) grammatical accuracy ii. "...digital messages encourage brevity " a) shortness / concise expression	4

	b) humour c) unnecessary detail iii. Why might handwritten letters feel more meaningful than digital messages? Use textual evidence to support your reasoning. iv. Write a 5–7 sentence summary of the passage. Make sure your summary: • captures the main idea • includes key supporting points • avoids minor details and repetition • uses your own words (b) Your company, ABC Infotech asked to order around 50 PC's from Xelon Computers. Upon setting them up, you find that around 10 PC's are exhibiting different errors. Write a letter of complaint, explaining the situation in detail and asking for the needful to be done so that you have all the 50 PC's in working condition at no extra cost.	6
4.	(a) You are applying for the role of Software Developer at a start-up that values problem-solving and teamwork. Write a cover letter highlighting your skill sets and the ability to collaborate. (b) Draft a CV to apply for the above-mentioned position.	4 6
5.	(a) What paralanguage habits (e.g., talking too fast, speaking too softly, monotone voice) would you like to improve, and how? (b) Your friend shares a personal problem, but you quickly try to give solutions before fully understanding the issue. Identify which listening stage was skipped and how it affected communication.	4 6
6.	(a) Explain the importance of Group Discussion as an evaluation tool in academic and professional settings. Discuss how GD helps assess communication skills, teamwork, leadership, critical thinking, and attitude with relevant examples. (b) Explain the different types of interviews (telephonic, panel, one-to-one, technical, stress interview, behavioural, virtual interview, etc.)	4 6